CONTROL OF VA. LINES

Believes Pennsylvania Company Dominates N. & W. and C. & O .- Says it is a Menacs to Industry from Norfolk to Bristol.

It was reported here through a tele gram from New York last night that Attorney-General W. A. Anderson was contemplating beginning action in the United States Court to test the validity of the alleged control of the Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio Railways by the Pennsylvania system.

When seen at his home on North Fifth Street, last night, Major Anderson was surprised to learn that any one had suggested such a thing, though he talked freely concerning the effect of the controlling interest in the two roads being owned by the Pennsylvania Company.

Major Anderson said he had received no reliable information which would at

MENACE TO VIRGINIA.

To thought it proper, however, to say that from the time he learned that a controlling interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western Railway Companies had been acquired by the Pennsylvinia Company, or by persons in its interest, he had regarded the acquisition of the control of these Virginia companies by their most powerful rival and competitor as a menace, not only to Virginia, and particularly to Norfolk, Newport News and Richmond, but also as imperilling the normal growth and development of both these great railway systems and of all communities and regions which depend upon those great roads for an outlet to the sea and to the markets of the world.

Major Anderson declared that there was no foundation for the statement that he had decided as yet, to institute any proceedings to test the validity of the

that he had decided as yet, to institute any proceedings to test the validity of the alleged community control of the Vir-ginia lines of traffic in the interest of the Pennsylvania Raliroad Compuny, but from his conversation it could be easily gathered that he was entirely out of sympathy with what he believes to be going on in this line.

The question is one that good lawyers believe does not belong to the courts, and believe does not belong to the courts, and there are those who believe it can never be settled except through amendment to the interstate commerce law or the creation of a National Corporation Commission with ample powers.

The question, however, is a most interesting one, and affects in the minds of many the material industries of the State

REHAN AND SKINNER PROVE BRILLIANT

Former in Excellent Spirits, Unaware of the Death of Her Brother.

Perhaps the most brilliant audience that has assembled at the Academy this sesson witnessed the production of "The Taming of the Shrew" last evening, as presented by Ada Rehan and Otis Skinner. The ap-by Ada Rehan and Otts Skinner. The appearance of either one of these stars would have been a worthy attraction, but the opportunity afforded to see both the same evening made the event unusually attractive.

The production was most artistic and most complete, Of all of Shakespeare's comedies "The Taming of the Shrew" is perhaps the liveliest in its action. In the production of last night the action, was never allowed to flag for a moment. That Miss Rehan is an artist of rare skells at a fact which none will dispute. The place she has won upon the stage, and her efforts in behalf of the highest ideals in her art, are matters with which the public are quite familiar. Her portrayel of Katharine was an achievement worthy of the actress.

Mr. Skinner The appearance of either one of these stars and upwards, six furlong, in the last lew strides at Brighton Beach to-day. Ormode's Right, the favorite, got off poorly and was never prominent.

Mr. Skinner admirably impersonated Petruchlo, the wife tamer, Whatever this actor undertakes he does well, and his portrayal in "The Taming of the Shrew" is no exception.

The news of the death of Miss Rehan's brother, which occurred Sunday, has not yet reached her cars, and it is understood that diligent effort is being made to prevent her hearing of her bereavement, at least for the present. It is feared that she may break down and completely collapse if the fact is made known to her, and this is being guarded against. That she had not heard of her misfortune last night was clearly evident, for she seemed in excellent spirits, and in the second scene of the fourth act some little happening must have occurred outside of the routine of her work, for she plainly showed signs of mirth at a time when the lines certainly did not call for it. TWO PLAYERS ARE RULED OUT

Have Played Four Years and Can't Appear on the Field Next Saturday.

The Executive Committee of the Virginia Intercollegiate Athlete Association, which was scheduled to meet at Murphy's Hotel Tuesday night, failed to get together, owing to the non-arrival of Professor Winaton, of Hampden-Sidaey. The other two members, Dr. J. A. C. Chandler and Professor Campbell, of Washington and Lee, were present. The meeting was pastoned to last night, when the ton and Lee, were present. The meeting was postponed to last night, when the committee met in the law offices of McGuire and Riely, in the Chamber of Commerce Building, with all three members present.

The object of the meeting was The object of the meeting was to consider protests of two foot-ball players, who, it is alleged, have played for four years on Virginia college teams, and under the rules of the association are incligible to play again in games among colleges belonging to the association. One of these is Carpenter, who played last year and year before as right halfback of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and for two seasons before that as fullback on the same team, and of J. C. Council, who for two or more seasons past has played with the University of Virginia eleven, and prior to that time with the University of North Carolina team.

with the University of Virginia elevent, and prior to that time with the University of North Carolina team.

The importance of these cases is that upon their decision depended the life of the Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Association, formed to place athletics upon a proper basis in this State. One of the rules of the association forbids the playing of a man more than lour years upon only college team of the association.

At the meeting last night the matter was thoroughly gone into and a decision was reached. Under the four-year rule, Carpenter, of the V. P.
